COMMERCIAL UNION.

It appears to be the burning question of the day in some of the eastern provinces, and as usual there is a vast difference of opinion on the advisability of the removal of all restrictions to commerce between Canada and her immediate neighbor and as to the effects likely to follow were such a radical proposal to become a reality. One party argues commercial union is only another name for annexation, and would be certain to result in almost immediate absorption and the consequent extinction of the Dominion as a separate entity. Another says that commercial union, by giving all that can be wished for apart from political union, will effectively remove the strongest arguments for the latter and have an entirely opposite result. While the patriotic upholders of the British Empire in its entirety see in the proposal a fatal approach towards dismemberment by the existence of an insurmountable barrier erected and maintained by her own dependency. In truth any commercial union on free trade principles with the States— itself the most protected of all countries—and at the same time to maintain a protective policy towards Great Britain and the rest of the world, does not on the face of it seem to be a very workable idea. In the meantime it will have been observed the major part, or rather the whole, of the agitation appears to be on the Canadian side, chiefly among the farmers of Ontario, whose community so far as appears from newspaper reports would seem to be in a manner complete. But what say the other classes of the Canadian people? What say the Americans? They don't make much sign. Are they lying off to see how the wind will blow? And what says the old country? Must Canada not defer a little to her neighbor? To promoters of commercial union between Great Britain, the United States and Canada, on proper principles that will be fair to all and no ways disadvantageous to the weakest party, we are prepared to say God speed. To those who would deliberately repel the stronger power and outface the latter on her last advice is

"SEED GRAIN"

To the Editor of the Times.

SIR—In his latest appearance Mr. McTaggart contrives to again shift his ground of attack and to traverse in part what he has said before. In his first letter he said the seed grain committee were lunatics and their report was untrue. Finding that position untenable he next resorted to innuendo and tried to saddle the responsibility on a party he had not the manliness to name. Foiled in this attempt he now asserts his conviction that there is no report at all and under cover of this feigned "belief" he tenders a humble apology to the committee and thus makes another futile attempt to wriggle out of the awkward fix he is in. The artifice, however, is too clumsy and no one will believe it.

Had Mr. McTaggart been at all anxious to ascertain the truth (which in the face of his writings it is impossible to credit) he knows he could by a straightforward inquiry at first have found out all about the report. If it were not forthcoming he could have made this known, and if it were untrue he could have shown it up, but that he has preferred to publish these most unscrupulous attacks without having taken a single proper step to ascertain the truth is capable only of one interpretation.

I am fully persuaded, however, that Mr. McTaggart knows all about the report and knows it to be true and for that very reason has raised all this storm over it. In one of his letters he said I had accepted the responsibility. I should like to know when I tried to shirk the responsibility, and I should also like to know when in reason should be expected to assume any more responsibility than myself? Mr. McTaggart knows the committee had appointed me (as acting chairman) to make all arrangements on their behalf and associated the Secretary with me. And if he did not know before, I tell him now that I desired to have a colleague, not because of the work, which was easy, but because the negotiations were to be through Mr. McTaggart. I had a sufficient motive for declining to act alone with him. I distrusted him and in doing the work of the committee I was especially careful, as no one knows better than Mr. McTaggart himself—and that is how I know my ground so thoroughly. I thought my caution justifiable at the time and I am doubly convinced of it now.

Mr. McTaggart reverts to Mr. John C. McNeill's case and has now placed on record statements as to this matter so diametrically opposed that, in the very nature of things, some of them must be untrue, as your readers will easily see. In his letter of the 24th June he says "he came to me for a few bushels of barley after he was through with other seedling, without giving me any previous notice of his requirements and long after all the barley on hand had been allotted." This statement from its circumstantiality looks very convincing, but as I knew the facts too well, it forcibly reminded me of Montbarrous in The Antiquary "Woman, thy special description will not serve, it may be only a lie with a circumstance." I disposed of this statement in my last, but my opponent does it far more thoroughly in his recent effort himself. I knew well that at the moment he was writing the above statement there was documentary evidence in his own possession to dispose every word of it. I did not choose to refer to this in my last because I had quite sufficient evidence in proof of my allegations otherwise, and I feared "the order paper" might not be forth coming if I referred to it. However after my pointed reference to 25th of April and finding he was, in vulgar phrase, "cornered," he makes a merit of necessity and comes out with a new statement which is in part correct, but has for Mr. McTaggart the fatal fault that it flatly contradicts his previous one in every essential particular and entirely demolishes the arguments he tried to build upon it. Let us again quote his own words, "on referring to my order paper I find there was an application filed for him on 13th April, only the day previous to coming for them, not for 30 bushels oats as stated by Mr. Craig but for 20 bushels oats and 10 of barley. The latter I find cancelled in the order paper for the reason already given." Now it grain committee) compare these two statements of Mr. McTaggart's and say whether these words of 24th June do not entirely stultify those of 24th June and lay him open to the charge of bringing forward the partially true statement only when he found the wholly false one would not serve his turn—and whether they do not also fully corroborate my own statements in the TIMES of 1st July? And yet while proceeding to demolish his own handiwork Mr. McTaggart has the hardihood to claim that his first statement "by memory only was absolutely correct." I fear the discerning public he appeals to will be liable to suspect the faculty he drew on was not memory, but imagination. Truly the old philosopher was right "a dissembler hath need of a good memory, lest he contradicts at one time what he hath said at another."

I have also to point out another instance of garbling on Mr. McTaggart's part when quoting my words which I am persuaded is not accidental. In the above statement he says "not for 30 bushels oats as stated by Mr. Craig but for 29." Now as anyone may see in my last letter I stated plainly as words could do "this requirements were for twenty to thirty bushels oats." I complain of this barefaced misquotation of my words because I am deliberate in my statements and do not propose to take shelter under either the "belief" or the "memory" excuse. That Mr. McTaggart put down only 29 bushels on his order paper is correct—he declined to put more, though I asked 20 to 30—but that has nothing to do with this matter and nothing can justify Mr. McTaggart in quoting my printed words with a material suppression intended to mislead. It is a pure fraud.

I pass over Mr. McTaggart's final remarks, as they are both false and feeble, and I am glad he has closed the discussion, because I regret to say his letters have come to evince a laxity of moral fibre on the part of the writer suggestive of great insensibility to the principles of justice, honor and truth.

Since writing the above, my friend Mr. J. C. McNeill has handed me a copy of a letter which will appear in tomorrow's TIMES. I venture to say the publication of his plain and truthful statement will bring Mr. McTaggart to the bar of public opinion in a pitiable plight, and the issue will not be the refusal or non refusal of seed grain, but the mending or marring of a reputation.

Yours truly,

WM. CRAIG.

P.S.—I beg to refer to the enclosed letter to me from the secretary of the Lorne Agricultural Society, which he has allowed me to publish.

Prince Albert, July 11, 1887.

WM. CRAIG, Esq., J.P.,
St. Catharines.

DEAR SIR,—In reply to your enquiries I beg to state: (1) That Mr. McTaggart has not made enquiry of me in regard to the seed grain committee's report submitted to the general meeting of directors of the Lorne Agricultural Society on the 31st of May.

(2) The TIMES' report of the 1st June was copied by me from the Western minute book. It is quite correct.

(3) That at a meeting of the committee on February last you were appointed to carry out arrangements with the Lorne Agricultural Society for seed grain with my assistance.

(4) You were the only member of the committee who took an active part in the negotiations with Mr. McTaggart.

(5) You did not in any way consult me, nor did I say any directly or indirectly approach you as to the subject matter of your first letter in the TIMES. I knew it for the first time when I saw it in print. It was unnecessary you should seek information from me, as you yourself knew more about it than I or any one else did or could know, and the report was written by me from information supplied by yourself.

I am, dear sir,

Yours faithfully,

A. H. CLARK.

TERRITORIAL NEWS

BATTLEFORD.

From the Herald, June 25.

The Mounted Police have gone under canvass on the high land a little south of the town.

The Stonies at Eagle Hills having got in all their crops and being a little at leisure until haying time comes, are waging war against gophers, and getting the number of these pests very perceptibly reduced in the neighborhood of their fields.

The week has been marked by a recurrence of the showers which have every week this season come to help along the growing crops. Water is beginning to gather in many of the swamps that have been dry for years, and is coming in time to very materially help the growing crop
of grass.

Four or five men in town claim to have discovered coal in paying quantities within five miles from Battleford, and have taken the necessary steps to secure the location. They claim it responds to all the tests by which first-class coal is known, and it is in illimitable quantity.
We hope that all the signs of success
that now cheer the hearts of the discoverers may be fully realized.

On Thursday evening Miss Bigoness, sister of Rev. A. H. Bigoness, was surprised at being called on by a number of Mounted Police, and still more so when they made known the object of their visit,
which was to ask her acceptance of a gold watch subscribed for by the Mounted Police and offered her as an acknowledgement of the great pleasure she had afforded them during the long time she had so faithfully and efficiently presided
at the organ in the Roman Catholic Church here.

Messrs. Cunningham, McLean, Stafford
and Jas. Ballendine arrived from Prince Albert this week.

REGINA.

From the Leader, June 30.

Nothing further has been heard regarding the murderers of McLeish, McLean and Poole, and it seems probable that they have escaped.

Rev. Father Hugonard, of the Indian School at Fort Qu'Appelle, is in town on business connected with the building of the addition of a girl's school to the Indian school at the Mission.

Mr. Joseph Savard while on a drive to the bluffs yesterday, secured some samples of grain grown on the farm of Mr.
Neilson, 15 miles from the town, which he has shown us. In wheat he has stalks 36 inches long with heads four inches
and he has oats 34 inches.

A Moose Jaw telegram says: Robert Graham, reported killed by Crow Indians in Montana, reached here to-day. He left Bell, his companion, who was also reported killed, at Fort Buford, Dak., detained there with stock by the breaking of the cable over the Missouri river, which is unusually high this season. He reports no ground for the rumors.

His honor Lt. Governor Dewdney and Mrs. Dewdney, accompanied by Mr. E. T.
Gault, of the North-West Coal and Navigation Co., who arrived from Lethbridge
on Sunday night, and Mr. W. McGirr, private secretary, left on Monday night
for Winnipeg. The Lt. Governor goes on business connected with the Indian Department. He is expected to return early next week, when Sir John A. Macdonald may accompany him, being en route to Banff.

MEDICINE HAT.

From the Times, July 2.

The Chipman ranche near Calgary is offered for sale.

Government hall has been engaged for a ball on Monday evening.

Robert Sage has commenced the erection of his house on Main street.

Bea McCord & Co. report too much rain for the successful manufacture of brick.

The Medicine Hat railway is a sure thing, and trains will be running by fall.

Hugh Dempsey has a neat sample room in connection with the Cosmopolitan hotel.

Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, added several inches to this year's rain fall.

The supreme court sitting for Medicine
Hat will take place on Saturday, the 23rd day of July.

The entertainment given by the ladies of the Methodist church last evening passed off very pleasantly.

The crops are reported farther advanced this year, at this time, than any previous season.

REFUSED SEED GRAIN.
To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,—Would you be kind enough to allow me a small space in your valuable paper in which to defend myself against what Mr. McTaggart calls my case? In your issue of June 12th he goes on to say my case was briefly this "he came to me for a few bushels of barley after he was through with other seedling." Well all I can say on this point is, that I deny the charge, for I never went to Mr. McTaggart for barley. I requested Mr. Craig to put in an application for twenty-five or thirty bushels of oats for me and before I went to Mr. McTaggart I was told by Mr. Craig that he had put in the application and I went down with my team for the same. When I went to the office, I asked Mr. Louis Schmidt for the grain. He asked me if I put in application for it before then. I told him Mr. Craig put it in for me and he turned over some papers and found that Mr. Craig had done so, and I believe was about giving me an order when in slipped Mr. McTaggart out of the side room and told me I could not get any grain. This was on the fourteenth day of April. That was pretty early to be all done seedling, as I did not commence seedling until the 18th of April.

In the second place, Mr. McTaggart goes on to say that it was barley I wanted and that I would not take oats—that was on the fourteenth of April. Afterwards he acknowledges that the application was for oats and says they were "allotted to me." If this is true, why did he not give me the oats? He says in your issue of June 24th he offered me oats but I would not take them. In your issue of July the 8th he says the reason he would not let me have the oats was because part of them was not in yet.

In conclusion all I will say is merely this, that the readers of your columns must judge for themselves, but it can be plainly seen that Mr. McTaggart has turned and changed in every direction and one sentence contradicts the other. But take Mr. Craig's side of the question as regards the refusal of seed grain to me and as near as I can say or remember he has stated the exact truth and I will support the same as far as I am able.

Yours truly,
JOHN C. McNEVIN.
Ridge, Kirkpatrick, July 11th, 1887.

There will be a meeting of the committee of the Lorne Agricultural Society to select judges, on Wednesday next, at 2 o'clock p.m.

The P. A. C. Band was out last night in great style. The new band wagon which arrived last mail for Donalldson & Pembroke, is a beauty. It was certainly very pretty to see that fine bus, drawn by four splendid horses, while the band played with its known ability some very gay tunes. After driving through all the streets of the Mission they visited the west end. At Mr. Swanston's they made a halt, and gave him a short serenade. Mr. St. Louis addressed a few words to Mr. Swanston, who replied, expressing his good wishes for the future prosperity of the band and congratulating them on their complete success up to now, promising to encourage them in the future as in the past, and saying a uniform was all they required now. The hour being a little advanced in the evening, they had to postpone to an early opportunity a visit to the east end.

We are glad to welcome back Mr. Hilyard Mitchell from his extended trip to the old country. Mr. Mitchell has brought with him a beautiful specimen of the Scottish Deerhound. "Roy" stands about 30 inches high and looks as sagacious as though he knew the value of the pedigree to which he is entitled. Mr. Mitchell has also made arrangements for the importation of a small herd of the picturesque West Highland cattle, which we understand are at Pointe Levis, undergoing quarantine. We think this breed will be found admirably adapted to our soil and climate, and crossed with the pure buffalo, as Mr. Mitchell contemplates, we expect they will yield such robes as have never been seen in the North West. We wish Mr. Mitchell every success in his plucky enterprise.

MR. HAGUE'S ADDRESS

AT THE GENERAL MEETING OF THE MERCHANT'S BANK.

At the recent meeting of the shareholders of the Merchant's Bank held in Montreal, Mr. George Hague, the general manager, spoke of the business of the bank for the past year and the general outlook of business for the future. Speaking of the Northwest, Mr. Hague said: The agriculturists of Manitoba and the Northwest, however, had a disappointment in harvest. Drought in summer and a touch of early frost in the low places destroyed the hopes of an abundant crop and reduced them to less than the average. Though the Northwest had passed through seasons of trial it would be unwise to take a pessimistic view of the future. Early years in nearly all the states of the west, Illinois included, were marked by trying seasons, crops being wholly or partially destroyed year after year. Some settlers gave up in despair. The bulk of them, however, held on and fought the battle through, being ultimately rewarded by comfort and competence, while states themselves became the homes of industrious millions. The province of Quebec had passed through the same experience about thirty years ago. After an inflation resembling the Northwest boom, it suffered a depression of corresponding severity. Crops were bad for many years in succession, the country became poorer and poorer and farmers more and more deep in debt. A shrewd judge of business matters, he said, at that time expressed his opinion to me that Upper Canada was ruined beyond redemption. But this state of things passed away in time, and the development of recent years is a matter of notoriety. I have a strong conviction that to the Northwest we shall see a similar recovery.

I do not think, however, it will be as rapid as I once thought it would be; but it will come. In Manitoba and other places, necessity has been the mother of invention. Bad grain crops have driven farmers to mixed farming and cattle raising, a great improvement on the old order of things. One thing about the Northwest is certain. It has been proved that the finest wheat in the world can be grown there in reasonable quantities per acre. It is beyond doubt a splendid region for cattle, and dairy produce must flourish there in time.

Ottawa, June 29.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers opened their annual convention here this morning under the auspices of the Canadian Division. Nearly 400 visitors were in attendance. The Brotherhood went in a body to the city hall to-night, where a public meeting was held. Addresses were made by the mayor, Grand Chief T.M. Arthur, of Cleveland, Ohio, and others. They then proceeded to the roller skating rink, where a banquet was held.

It is understood that the Manitoba and Northwest members waited on Sir John prior to their departure and urged upon him the claims of the country west of Lake Superior to representation in the Cabinet. The Premier seemed to regard their representation very favorably; however, no action will be taken at present.

It is understood that Hardisty, one of the Chief factors, of the Hudson's Bay Co., and one of the most prominent men in the Territories, will receive the senatorship for Alberta. Quite a number of other applicants are in the field, and it is said that Perley, M.P., is seeking the same position in Assiniboia.

Sir Charles Tupper with his lady leaves tomorrow morning for the east, after attending the marriage of his son, W. J. Tupper of Winnipeg. He will retain the portfolio for at least six months.

A cabinet minister is authority for the statement that there will be no cabinet changes this summer.

General Middleton says he is very well satisfied with the result of the inspection of the various brigade camps.

It is reported here that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has instructed its agents to buy up the bonds issued by the Manitoba Government to raise funds to build the road to the boundary. The company hopes if it gets possession of the bonds, to prevent the construction of the road in some way.

Chapleau returned from Montreal yesterday and had a long conference with Sir John before the meeting of the council. He has definitely declined the Lt.-Governorship of Quebec, and will continue as Secretary of State.

Town sites at Banff Springs National Park are being disposed of by the Department of the Interior, subject to the annual imposition of $30 rental.

Senator Schultz left for Banff last night, and Surveyor-General Deville for British Columbia.
